Dear Chairman Obey and Ranking Member Lewis:

I am requesting bill language to be included in the fiscal year 2010 Defense Appropriations bill. The entity to receive funding for this project is the National Geospatial-Intelligence Agency (NGA) at 4600 Sangamore Road, Bethesda, MD, 20816. This language encourages the Committee to strongly support the efforts, the role played by, and the efficacy of the commercial imagery industry to serve the interests of the NGA and the end user community by harnessing technological innovation, efficiencies, and commercial best practices. I encourage the Committee to recommend: (1) The NGA and National Reconnaissance Office make integration of common satellite imagery into the NGA community a higher priority and act deliberately and quickly to ensure this capability is maximized; (2) NGA funds be authorized to improve integration between the US Government and commercial satellite imagery in the areas of task dissemination and classified operations. I am requesting bill language to be included in the fiscal year 2010 Defense Appropriations bill. The entity to receive funding for this project is the Missile Defense Agency, 7100 Defense Pentagon, Washington DC 20301. This language encourages the Committee to recognize the Kinetic Energy Interceptor as a deployable, early engagement ballistic missile defense weapon system designed to take maximum advantage of its state of the art multi-sensor (including satellite data) fire control to enable BMDS defense in-depth layered architecture. Introduction of KEI capability will significantly improve BMDS cost effectiveness and probability of engagement success against the most sophisticated classes of threats. This language encourages the Committee to recognize the Airborne Laser capability to destroy ballistic missiles in the boost phase of the trajectory, the segment from post-launch through propellant burnout. The ABL program is designing, building, and testing an airborne laser system with unique capabilities to provide boost-phase defense against ballistic missile threats by acquiring, tracking, and destroying ballistic missiles and to support the multi-tiered BMDS concept. The ABL provides the nation with the capability to shoot down ballistic missiles in their boost phase of flight and perform additional missions such as air-to-air, counter-SAM protection and cruise missile defense. I am requesting bill language to be included in the fiscal year 2010 Defense Appropriations bill. The entity to receive funding for this project is the Missile Defense Agency, 7100 Defense Pentagon, Washington DC 20301.
